- How to Think Like a Futurist
- The Future of Work and People
- Antifragility in Life and Work

Clients experience being able to:

- Successfully prepare their organisations and people for the future, to anticipate the changes and megatrends shaping our world.
- Develop adaptive intelligence, improve agility, responsiveness to change, antifragile resilience, and full-blown innovation.
- Learning to 'think like a futurist', bringing strategic foresight to their planning, organisational development and everyday work.
- See significant improvements in areas of strategy development and implementation, leadership effectiveness, team dynamics and the application of technology to innovation.
- Confidently navigate the complex journeys of disruption & change.

Delivery Style

Whether online from his fully equipped HD home video studio or in-person, in the room, Graeme's sessions are conversational, interactive and engaging, laced with humour, multimedia, and examples from his work in multiple industries. He is memorable, insightful and practical.

He works hard with clients to find ways to ensure value is taken back to the office, that his delivery is customised to the clients industry, and that his messages make a real impact on business outcomes.
